

Consultation example in the field of: Nature and animals

The initial situation:

First appointment on 02.04.2009:

After Mr. Kai Kobler had had very positive experiences with QUANTEC® and us in the field of company consultation, it seemed appropriate to apply this to other areas. His company building and private house stand on a large property. The front area is also used accordingly. In the larger, rear area, Mr. Kobler keeps about 10 sheep, where the following situation has existed for some time:

Many thistles have grown in the meadow over recent years. The grass needs good fertilisation for the sheep to have enough to eat. The earth is very compacted, and it therefore takes a relatively long time for rainwater to penetrate into the ground – puddles of surface water form. This is probably also the reason why the sheep continually have problems with their hooves (in the form of footrot). There are also many trees spread over the property which are infected by so-called leaf blotch. The chestnut trees are also infested by leafminer moths.

Our task:

1. Elimination of the thistles
2. Vigorous grass growth
3. Improving the health condition of the trees
4. Optimising the ventilation of the ground
5. Improving the health of the sheep

“This would naturally be the optimum condition of the ground and soil.” On the basis of these circumstances, we worked out a treatment programme (HealingSheet*), in order to fulfil as many as possible or all of these criteria.

* The QUANTEC® HealingSheet is a therapy program that contains all affirmations and remedies that are broadcasted to the client or the target. The HealingSheet is the result of an automated scan performed by QUANTEC®.

The treatment programme (HealingSheet) therefore contains a corresponding number of target formulations. As the target image, I used a copy of the site plan (extract from Land Registry). Firstly an accurately cut-out picture of the complete property, and also the part on which the district, survey office etc. are marked. It was the first time that I had worked in this way, so it had to be particularly correct.

The resulting treatment programme (HealingSheet) was set from the beginning for transmission for a whole year, since the natural cycle is also a year.

Changes during this time:

Mr. Kobler reported the first changes as early as the spring – no more thistles had grown anywhere over the whole property! Thistle-free after only six weeks of transmission! It was also apparent that the grass was growing much more vigorously without fertilisation, and with a richer green. In summer, the change in the soil ventilation also became clearly visible. After longer and heavier rain, the water seeps into the ground much more quickly than usual, so that no water or only little water accumulates. By autumn, the trees showed a significant decline in leaf blotch infection. The sheep had no more problems with their hooves, which in my view has to do with the improved soil quality, and their general health condition improved perceptibly. The overall health condition of the property, and also of the sheep, therefore improved significantly within one year!

This situation is actually very close to that desired! The transmission by QUANTEC® continues to date, so that further improvements can also be expected.

Thank you very much – Stephan A. König
